

TO THE PERFECT BRIDE ON HER PERFECT WEDDING DAY

by Brian Bell

To prove his skill
the witless vintner,
grows his vines
to sprawl, to thick
canopies of shoots,
and leaves and branches.

All greenery,
all leaves should
suggest a healthy vine,
but for all the plant's show,
growing an uncut
canopy bears
no wine.